INTRODUCTION

Higher education in India is undergoing considerable change. With over 600 million people in India under 25 years of age, the system is under tremendous pressure to expand. Many trends are emerging in the key areas of higher education, research and innovation. The access of technology, social mobility of community, patterns of funding for the organizations in this sector, increasing significance of research and diversification of the education system have acted as accelerators of transformation. Educational institutions and universities should respond to this paradigm shift and adapt to the growing appetite of young India towards higher education. Across the globe, the higher education sector is an important player in introducing innovative approaches along with sustaining the economic pressures of running a large institution controlled by external factors such as rankings, increasing competition for students and attracting intellectual faculty and confronting in-house pressures from the Boards. The seminar aims to bring together leading academic scientists, researchers and faculty members to share proven and innovative ideas, experiences and perspectives about transformation in higher education.
