ACCA IN INDIA

Once you become an ACCA member, you enter in a world of endless opportunities.

The ACCA Qualification is widely recognized in and outside India. We believe that success of our members is what makes us a coveted qualification globally. Many of our members work with leading Indian and multinational organizations in and out of India. You can read some of the Indian member profiles here: <http://www2.accaglobal.com/india/members/>

IMPORTANT

ACCA qualified professionals are well equipped to perform and take on a variety of roles expected of a finance professional internationally and in India. The ACCA qualification does not however, qualify you to become a member of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of India (“ICAI”).

Certain activities are statutorily reserved for members of the ICAI, which include a. Audit of accounts and other statutory functions under the Companies Act, 1956

b. Tax Audit and other certification under the Income Tax Act, 1961

As an ACCA member, you are entitled to use the designation “ACCA” (Associate) or “FCCA” (Fellow) as applicable, which is distinct from the designation “Chartered Accountant” as it is understood within Indian statute.
